

SITE SURVEY SUMMARY SHEET FOR DERP-FUDS SITE NO. J09CA096400

SITE NAME: Survival Training Auxiliary Site, Calaveras County, California.

LOCATION: The site is located at New Hogan Lake in Calaveras County, California (Figure 1 and Figure 2).

SITE HISTORY: The Survival Training Auxiliary Site was located at New Hogan Lake in Calaveras County, California. The site was acquired prior to 16 May 1967, and consisted of 85.55 fee acres. Records indicate the site was used as a survival training site by the Air Force. Improvements listed were roads, trails, a survival training tower, a classroom building, a generator, chemical latrines, a floating small boat dock and launch ramp, a water tank with pumping and filtering system, a sewage disposal system, 20 cabins, caretakers residence, a softball diamond, and a picnic area.

SITE VISIT: On 24 August 1992, Randi Beuttler and Kirk Henning of Radian Corporation visited the site, and spoke with Mr. Bob Vincent of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Sacramento District. The site is known as New Hogan Lake and is currently part of the New Hogan Dam flood control and irrigation project maintained by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers (USACE). Neither Mr. Vincent nor the New Hogan Lake Park Rangers had knowledge of previous uses by the Air Force or Army for other than recreational camping and boating. The park rangers stated that an archaeological study has been performed in this area, and that no structures or other indications of past use by the Department of Defense were found.

CATEGORY OF HAZARDS: None identified.

PROJECT DESCRIPTION: NOFA.

AVAILABLE STUDIES AND REPORTS: None identified.

PA POC: Natalie Sterling, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Sacramento District, (916) 557-7227.
